

Additional transatlantic service

BBC CHARTERING | The German heavy-lift shipping operator BBC Chartering has announced the commencement of a new monthly liner service that connects loading ports in the Mediterranean with the east coast of Latin America. This step, the company said, is a response to the demand for the shipment of capital goods in the mining and energy sectors due to the positive development of major investment projects in South America. The new service is marketed under the name “BBC Americana Line – Med Service” and calls at the loading ports of Izmir, Porto Marghera, and Genoa with discharge in Suape, Rio de Janeiro, Santos and Buenos Aires. The company said that other ports en route could be called at an inducement basis.
